

Young Ho Sohn, MD, PhD

Professor Young Ho Sohn is currently affiliated with the Department of Neurology, Yonsei University College of Medicine, Seoul, Korea. Professor Sohn served formerly as the Editor of the Journal of Movement Disorders and the president of Korean Movement Disorder Society. He has won several awards including the Korean Science and Engineering Foundation Abroad Research Fellowship Award (2000), The Yonsei Best Research Professor (2001), and The Academic Award of the Korean Movement Disorder Society (2012), and was named the Yonsei University Superior Research Professor in 2005.

Professor Sohn's bibliography includes over 200 original research reports mostly concerning aspects of neurophysiology of human motor control and various movement disorders including Parkinson disease.