

Dr Rukmini Mridula Kandadai is currently working as an Associate Professor in Department of Neurology, Nizam's Institute of Medical Sciences, Hyderabad, India. She is interested in movement disorders, cognitive neurology and neuroimaging. She is a part of the specialised movement disorder team running the STN-DBS programme in NIMS, where 40 DBS surgeries are done per year. She is a founding member as well as an executive member of Movement Disorders Society of India as well as the Parkinson's Research Alliance of India. She has over 50 papers published in national and international journals and over 10 chapters in various text books.