

Takeshi Ikeuchi, MD, PhD is a Professor of Brain Research Institute, Niigata University, Japan. He graduated from Niigata University School of Medicine in 1991 and obtained his Ph.D. in molecular neurogenetics in 2000 at the same institution. He was a postdoctoral scientist at University of Chicago (2000 – 2003). Since 2004, he has worked at Niigata University Hospital as a neurologist and Brain Research Institute as a physician scientist for the neurodegenerative disorders including dementia, atypical Parkinsonism, and leukoencephalopathies. His research interests include (1) genetic analysis, (2) biomarker development, and (3) translational research for the neurodegenerative disorders.