

Ailton Melo was graduated in Medicine at Federal University of Bahia (1983), PhD in Biological Sciences (Molecular Biology) at Federal University of São Paulo (1990) and post-doctorate at the Universities of Paris XI and Aix-Marseille. He is currently professor of Neurology (Department of Neurosciences and Mental Health) at Federal University of Bahia and coordinator of the Division of Neurology and Epidemiology (DINEP-UFBA), the research group registered in CNPq. The current focus of his scientific research are neurological diseases related to aging, with emphasis on the study of autonomic manifestations of Parkinson's disease and neurorehabilitation.