

Dr. Robert Rodnitzky is a graduate of the University of Chicago School Of Medicine. His postgraduate training was in internal medicine and neurology at the University of Iowa Hospitals and included a sabbatical leave at Stanford University where he studied motor physiology. He is the author or co-author of over 115 peer-viewed journal articles and 25 books or chapters. He has chaired or lectured in venues in Asia, Australia, Europe, North America and South America. He is currently Professor and Chair Emeritus in the Department of Neurology at the University College of Medicine and also serves as Associate Editor for the Americas for Parkinsonism and Related Disorders.